

MRS. HYLAN AGAINST J. F. FOR GOVERNOR

'I Want Him to Stay Right Where He Is in New York,' She Declares.

'SHE'S BOSS,' HE ADMITS

Executive Goes Out in City's Reception Yacht to Meet Family Back From Europe.

Mayor Hylan will not run for Governor despite many urgent requests by Mr. Hearst to do so—that is, if Mrs. Hylan has anything to say about it. She is "the boss"—the Mayor admitted it yesterday on her return from Europe on the Paris—and her verdict was "I want him to stay right where he is!"

Interrupting the reunion party held on the Paris at Quarantine by the Hylan-Sinnot family, reporters asked Mrs. Hylan what she thought of the Mayor's boom for Governor, which is said to be getting strongly under way. She immediately answered:

"I don't want him to run for Governor, but want him to stay where he is in New York. That is where he can serve the people best."

She's the Boss.

When the reporters turned to the Mayor, who was standing nearby, and asked him about it, he smilingly said:

"Well, she's the boss. She has given me my decision for me. The decision was made right here on the boat about my running for Governor, and although I was not decided or sure in my mind until today I know now what will be done. Mrs. Hylan has decided it for me, and as she wants me to remain here, I will. I am not going to run for Governor, but I intend to do. She's a great pal," the Mayor said as he put his arm around his wife, "and has struggled with me when I was right and has also struggled with me when I was wrong. We have lived thirty-two happy years together and will celebrate our wedding anniversary on September 24."

The cutting of the teeth by John Hylan Sinnot was of much more concern to Grandma Hylan than the gubernatorial race or the Mayor's participation in it, and the talk swiftly turned to the baby, who was waiting for the steamer at the pier in charge of his nurse, Magda Carson. A second reunion party was held on the pier while the customs men gave the party a quick dispatch and they all started for home. Mrs. Hylan and her daughter were new French creations, and with regard to styles Mrs. Hylan said: "Well, Paris may create the styles, but it certainly takes New York girls to wear them. There are no girls in the world like those in New York."

Uses City's Reception Yacht.

With all of the excitement usually attending a picnic the Hylan party boarded the city's reception steam yacht Macon and started down the bay to meet the Paris at 8 o'clock. Commissioner of Plant and Structures Grover A. Whalen accompanied the Mayor, as did a number of other relatives of the Hylan family and their friends. During a wait for the Macon at the pier the Mayor laughed and joked like a youngster out for a day's outing, and during the trip down the bay talked constantly of the return of his family.

When the ship was reached and the Mayor espied the heads of Mrs. Hylan and the Sinnots over the rail of the upper deck he grabbed a megaphone and shouted a greeting to them, which was answered by not less than a dozen persons on board the liner. "Welcome home!" he shouted to his family, and all of the passengers in hearing took it to themselves and answered in kind. Then the Mayor turned his attention and voice to the new brown fedora hat worn by his son-in-law and asked, "Where did you get that hat?" while Mr. Sinnot blushed at the laughter of the other passengers.

Joining the family aboard the steamer after the formality of presenting customs passes was complied with, the Mayor announced to Mrs. Hylan that the baby, John Hylan Sinnot, had cut two teeth yesterday in honor of the homecoming of his parents and grandma. "He's up at the pier waiting to help dock the ship," the Mayor told his daughter, and then they all went to pose for the photographers and chatted with the reporters while the ship made her way to Pier 57. There another celebration took place when the baby was presented to his parents, but he seemed more eager to watch the ship and cling to his grandma's finger with scant recognition of his mother and father or his grandma. "He's been forgotten us during the nine weeks we were away," Mrs. Hylan said. The party all went to Brooklyn in the Mayor's machine, his Honor proudly carrying the baby from the pier to the car.

Why Hot Weather Makes Your Feet Ache

WHEN the sweltering days of summer come, every muscle in the body has a special tendency to relax. The delicate muscles of the feet, which hold the arch of the foot in position, are always under a strain, due to the fact that they get no support from the ordinary shoe. The hot weather, with its relaxing effect, makes this condition worse. The result is that the lowered arch burns and aches, and every step is a torture. Now more than any other time you need the support that Arch Preserver Shoes will give you.

Women will be surprised and delighted at the smart, dainty styles in which Arch Preserver Shoes are made. We invite you to come in and see how comfortable we can make your feet. No obligation to see visitors whether they are ready to purchase or not.

ATLANTIC CITY CROWDS SEE TWO PLUNGE WITH PLANE

Bookkeeper Who Takes Up Machine Miraculously Escapes, as Does Mechanician—$6,000 Wreck Lies Useless at Inlet.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 19.—When a seaplane in which they were riding turned a somersault and landed bottom up on a sandbar at the Inlet this afternoon, two searider joy riders, Frederick Henry, a bookkeeper at the Curtis flying station, and James Moran, a mechanic, miraculously escaped death. The plane, valued at $6,000, lies a wreck. Dr. A. Livingston Allen, manager of the station, said the regular pilot was absent when the two others took the plane out "for exercise." The men assert that something was wrong with the engine and they took the plane out to ascertain the defect.

DENIED TRIP TO EUROPE, DOCTOR'S SON VANISHES

Harvard Student Was Punished for Disobeying Mother.

Search is being made for Patrick T. L. Putnam, 18, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Putnam of 181 East Seventeenth street, who disappeared in this city about July 11 after telegraphing his parents at their summer home, Martha's Vineyard, he was safe and would write them.

The young man, a student at Harvard, left the summer home July 14, saying he was coming here on a business trip. On July 17 he obtained a copy of his birth certificate from the Board of Health. It was thought he might have gone to Europe, but no passport has been issued in his name.

Dr. Putnam had planned a trip to England with his son, but on the day he left Martha's Vineyard told him that owing to some disobedience of his mother he should not be taken abroad. He is six feet one inch in height, weighs about 147 pounds, has light brown hair and blue eyes, fair complexion and stammers slightly when excited.

APPEALS CASE AGAINST QUEENS RY. RECEIVERS

Wallace to Carry Extra Fare Suit to High Court.

District Attorney Dana Wallace of Queens county has prepared an appeal from the decision of Justice Crosey granting a writ of habeas corpus to Slaughter W. Huff, general manager of the Third Avenue Railway Company, and Robert G. Lee as receivers of the Steinway lines of the New York and Queens County Railway, releasing them from custody and dismissing an action against them which had been brought in the Long Island City police court for charging an extra cent toll for fare in Queens. The magistrate held the two receivers for Special Sessions on the grounds that they had committed a misdemeanor in putting into operation a schedule of extra fares on the lines under their jurisdiction. Justice Crosey overruled Magistrate Miller and dismissed the action.

COCHET, FRENCH TENNIS STAR, SAILS FOR HOME

Lafayette Departs With Several Notables Aboard.

A number of notables sailed for Havre on the French liner Lafayette yesterday, including Henri Cochet, member of the French tennis team, which was recently defeated in match play with the Australians here. According to M. Cochet, the American tennis players here on the team made it impossible. He then went on to that that tennis has been taken up by France on a large scale and that the French will send a much stronger team here in future competition.

Clayland T. Morgan sailed yesterday to take charge of the passenger department of the French Line abroad to accommodate homeward bound Americans. He will remain abroad for two months until the vacation rush is over. Reginald Henshaw Ward, former Charge d'Affaires at the American Legation in Holland, also sailed on the Lafayette. Francis D. Gillatin, Commissioner of Parks, left for a vacation abroad.

GOV. McCRAE URGES BONUS.

Asks Indiana Senators to Support Compensation Bill.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19.—Gov. McCrae sent telegrams today to Senators Watson and New urging the passage by Congress of an adjusted compensation act for veterans of the world war. "I believe that the time has come," said the Governor's message, "when we should all stand for a compensation bill. I hope some plan may be worked out whereby this may become an accomplished fact and recognition of the valiant services thereby be rewarded."

MRS. GIBERSON GLAD TO SIT FOR PICTURE

Woman Held for Husband's Murder Jests With Camera Men.

REITERATES INNOCENCE

Declares She Had No Knowledge Slain Man Was Bootlegger.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

TOMBS RIVER, N. J., Aug. 19.—Complacent and at times even jocose in meeting half a dozen reporters and camera men, Mrs. Ivy Giberson of Lakehurst, in jail here charged with the murder of her husband, William, last Monday morning, submitted to interviews today. What she had to say added little to the story of the Giberson murder as already told by her.

"Have you boys got your cameras insured?" she asked the photographers as they got ready to take her picture.

"That's not necessary with such a pleasant subject," replied a camera man. "You're a nice boy and full of flat-tery," said Mrs. Giberson with a laugh.

Wants to Be Set Right.

The questioning was done by arrangement with County Prosecutor Jayne and former Judge Jaffrey, the woman's counsel, to whom were submitted the questions to be asked. Mrs. Giberson wanted to be interviewed so she might be set right with the world, and she ascribed her complicity to the fact that she is "innocent and unafraid."

"Did you kill your husband?" was the first question fired at her.

"I did not, as God is my judge," she replied, looking straight at her questioner.

Her lawyer explained she bought chloroform at Long Branch to clean a silk skirt with, and said her mourning clothes found in the house had been bought years ago when a relative died and had, as a matter of fact, been lent to half a dozen inhabitants of Lakehurst.

Mrs. Giberson said her relations with her husband were "entirely friendly" up to the last minute she saw him alive. Her son, Joe Richmond, she said, was friendly with his stepfather. All she knew of her husband having a quarrel with other men the night of the murder was what she had read in the newspapers. She never had heard of a check for $1,700 from the Federal Government her husband was supposed to have had a little while before the crime.

Never Heard of His Bootlegging.

"Was your husband a bootlegger or a professional gambler?"

"I never heard of it if he was," Mrs. Giberson replied.

Both Haynes and Jaffrey objected to questions about her son's value being found in the house the day of the crime. The woman said she had seen "Harry" Ga Nun two weeks before the crime, but refused to say where. She denied Mrs. Ga Nun had asked her to "break off relations" with Ga Nun, and said there was no reason for such a request. Then she was told of the report she had received letters from men.

"I defy the Prosecutor or any one else to produce or prove that I received letters from men other than business letters or letters that were just friendly," she answered.

The woman seems much less worried than the professional and amateur sleuths who are busy on the case but apparently making little headway. There is a disposition in some quarters to turn again to the theory that bootleggers killed Giberson. It is intimated Jayne is accusing the woman to put a real suspect of guard. The usual "startling developments" are promised "next week."

BUSTER BIRD, 14, GANG CHIEF OF 10TH AV., ESCAPES AGAIN

Little Gopher, Held in Burglary After Police Reserves Are Called, Proves Too Keen for Confiding Jailers of Children's Society.

Buster Bird is out again. The Buster who is only 14, and whose home, when he is home, is at 765 Tenth avenue, was arrested by Detective George E. Bart on Friday night at Fifty-second street and Tenth avenue. The Buster, being one of the strong influences in a West Side gang of youths known as the Little Gophers, was at once surrounded by his friends. So was Hart, who had the Buster by the neck.

Before the police reserves arrived and assisted Hart in landing the Buster in the West Forty-seventh street station the makings of a sanguinary riot had collected. Hart had arrested Buster, whose real name is Michael, on a charge of robbing the flat of Mrs. Luigine Barto, 515 West Fifty-second street. In addition to that the Buster was wanted because he had, about a month ago, escaped from the Catholic Protectory, to which he had been sentenced for three years for burglary.

When Hart landed the Buster in the West Forty-seventh street station it was decided, because of the young Gopher's age, to keep him over night in the temporary shelter of the Children's Society, 51 Irving place. That's where the police made their great mistake, so far as the Buster was concerned. Somehow or other, they had forgotten that the Buster had escaped from the Catholic Protectory despite its twelve foot wall and its guards.

The shelter into which the Buster was introduced for safe keeping until he could be arraigned yesterday morning is on the street floor and without real lock up accessories. All the Buster had to do was to pick a lock, jimmy a screen and step forth into the freedom of the streets. And he did just that.

The police told the people at the shelter to keep a steady eye upon the Buster, who is a heavy, overdeveloped youngster. They did keep his bed under surveillance. Every hour or so watchmen and nurses looked at the Buster's bed and they all reported that the Buster was dead to the world and buried beneath his sheets. But they lifted the sheets yesterday morning and found that what they had thought was the Buster was a pillow.

So the Buster is out again and the police of the West Forty-seventh street station were out last night making life a burden for the Little Gophers, hoping to learn where the Buster is hiding. But just as sure as the Buster is a tough egg they'll find him. He will come back, they say, to Tenth avenue.

MANHATTAN BOASTS 18 LARGEST HOTELS

Leads Nation With Hostleries Having More Than 450 Rooms.

There are 22,760 hotels in the United States and 284 in New York city, according to a survey by the Hotel Association of New York made public yesterday in connection with its appeal for inclusion of the industry in the United States census reports.

The industry has been rated by experts from fourth to fifth in capital invested, number of employees and volume of business "turnover." The association's statement puts the hotels in three general classes—commercial, residential and apartment. The survey of the association shows 18,129 hotels having up to 50 rooms; 4,128 having 50 to 200; 410, from 200 to 450 rooms; and 93, more than 450 rooms.

New York city has almost twice as many hotels as its closest rival, San Francisco. New York has, in a total of 284, 18 hotels with more than 450 rooms. San Francisco has 149 hotels, but only four of the first capacity. Chicago has eleven big hotels in a total 112, while Philadelphia has one in 148. Los Angeles has five with more than 450 rooms; Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis, New Orleans and Pittsburgh each have three. Cincinnati, St. Louis and Washington have two.

Fashion Outlines the New Modes For Autumn

As Fashion outlines the new modes for Autumn, Stewart & Co. are first in line to sponsor them. Portrayed are a few of the new silhouettes in feminine attire.

ELEGANT EVENING GOWNS

Evening Gowns so enchanting and captivating that make one glad the social season is on. Glittering affairs of brocaded metal cloths that radiate the charm of the wearer. Dresses of Wedding Ring Velvet or Chiffon that gayly glide thru the intricacies of the dance quite demurely, yet subtly expressing sophistication. And for mademoiselle—bewitching little affairs of crisp, lustrous Silk Faille with Beruffled skirt reflecting the bouffancy of the Colonial days.

29.50 to 149.50

NEW SILK FROCKS

The rustling of leaves in the woods brings the rustling of silks in the Dress Salon, with many new silken fabrics for afternoon dresses making their debut. Satin Matelasse, Crepe Elizabeth, Crepe Mongol or Silk Faille Crepe. The fashions are most enticing—long slender silhouettes with graceful drapes.

29.50 to 98.50

NEW CLOTH DRESSES

Cloth dresses, too, accomplish a graceful outline and are particularly popular at the time when it is too cool for a silk dress and just a bit too warm for an outer garment. Assembled are many interesting types fashioned of luxurious fabrics—Kash Cloth, Juina, Poirer Twill or Twill Cords.

24.50 to 98.50

SUITS for AUTUMN

Charming, boyish outlines are promised in the new Suits of Bulgarian Overblouse inspiration, with their graceful side drapes lending a touch of insouciant youth. Skillfully executed of the newest silk or woolen fabrics, with three-piece costume effect of silk Matelasse playing the leading role. Enriched with Wolf, Beaver or Squirrel Furs.

39.50 to 149.50

COATS and WRAPS

Fashion has outlined a host of delightful new creations in coats and wraps for Autumntime wear, embodying many decidedly new themes, and Stewart & Co. have executed them with a rare artistry. Especially appealing are the draped models that reveal the fascinating side fastenings and decorative ornamentation of buckles. The lavish use of fur contributes considerably to their beauty as well as practicability.

69.50 to 198.50

NEW AUTUMN CHAPEAUX

10.00 to 40.00

The popularity of fur has apparently gone to fashion's head, for the very smartest chapeaux of both French and American creation are now trimmed with Monkey Fur. And fashion, knowing nothing is beautiful unless it is harmonious, fashions hats of luxurious Hatters' Plush, Lyon or Panne Velvet to harmonize with the rich autumn outer garment fabrics.
